

U. N. FORCES CONTINUE PUNCHING AGGRESSIVE PATROLS AT RED LINES; GUARD AGAINST COUNTER-OFFENSIVE

U. S. 7th Division Elements Slog Through Rain-Lashed Quagmire on East-Central Front to Seize Positions Six Miles North of Pangnim-Hoengsong Road.

By Howard Handelman
TOKYO, Feb. 28.—(INS)—United Nations forces continued punching aggressive patrols at communist lines in Korea today to keep the enemy from getting set for an anticipated mass counter-offensive.

U. S. Seventh Division elements slogged through a rain-lashed quagmire on the east-central front to seize positions six miles north of the Pangnim-Hoengsong lateral road.

Far to the west, an infantry patrol from the American Third Division hammered across the Han river into the suburbs of Seoul Tuesday night, engaged in a brief fire fight with Chinese defenders and withdrew to the south bank of the stream.

Other commando-type hit-and-run raids by South Korean units were also announced today.

The ROK (Republic of Korea) navy announced that South Korean naval and marine forces landed Sunday on the Ongjin Peninsula and captured 21 communist officers before withdrawing.

The announcement also said the force destroyed 20 enemy encampments on the raid. The Ongjin Peninsula is on the west coast of Korea just south of the 38th parallel.

The ROKS also announced a raid on Kanghwa Island off Kimp'o Peninsula on the west coast Saturday by a ROK marine task force. Twenty reds were killed and one communist vessel destroyed.

The announcement said both raids were aided by anti-communist guerrillas.

On the east coast other ROK troops seized a small island off the enemy port of Wonsan at dawn Tuesday.

The navy announced in Tokyo that a small force of South Korean soldiers had captured the island.

Bonus Voted To Teachers, Supervisory Employees

MORRISVILLE, Feb. 28.—The teachers and supervisory employees of the Morrisville school district will receive a bonus of $125, according to approval made last evening by the borough school board.

The bonus, which will be payable in five monthly installments, also includes school janitors and clerks, who will receive $50 each. The bonus payments are in lieu of cost-of-living salary increases.

In approving the measure, the board announced that the State Legislature currently is considering a bill which would increase teachers' salaries for the following year. The measure probably will be approved, the board declared.

The board also approved a resolution calling for increased traffic protection for school children on S. Pennsylvania Ave. near the United States Steel Co. office. The protection will be sought from Borough Council.

He directed the board to liberalize the formula validating escalator clauses and using Jan. 15, 1950 pay as a base for increases. Labor will decide today on rejoining the board.

NESHAMINY BOARD CONSIDERS MENTOR SALARY INCREASES

Representatives of P. T. A.'s Are in Attendance At Session

By Staff Reporter
LANGHORNE, Feb. 28.—At a meeting of the Neshaminy Joint school board, held last evening in Langhorne high school, with President Kenneth Condy presiding, the board gave consideration to a cost of living increase in salaries of teachers, the purchase of a school bus, and numerous other problems confronting the district.

No action was taken on granting the cost of living increase in salaries. The problem was discussed last month, and was again given consideration last evening. Dr. Oliver Heckman, regional superintendent of schools, informed the board that Miss Georganna Staehle and William E. Macht had made a study of salaries of all school districts in the county and found that in Bucks County the starting salary is $2400, and the top salary $4400. Most salaries are all on the basis of a $200 increase per year which is provided for by law. The medium of salaries

THE THIRD-TERM ISSUE

The third term issue, which has disturbed this country over and again ever since the Constitutional Convention wrestled with it back in 1787, is now finally settled—or is it?

The thirty-sixth state has now ratified and made part of our basic law the Twenty-sixth Amendment which prohibits any President after Mr. Truman from being elected to more than two full-year terms, and counts as one of those terms the service of a vice-president filling a vacancy where this totals more than two years of the predecessor's term.

If the amendment applied to President Truman (which it doesn't; he is specifically exempted) then he would be eligible only to the one term of his own to which he has been elected and is now serving, since he served more than two years of the Roosevelt vacancy—actually, three and three-quarters years of it.

Most reporters and commentators discussing the new amendment, which is the first amendment ratified since prohibition was repealed back in 1933, assert that it was inspired by, and in a sense aimed at, the record of the late

ONE MAN'S OPINION

General Eisenhower hasn't acknowledged his selection as the best-dressed man in America. . . . Right now he's in Europe trying to figure whether Uncle Sam made the pants too long.

But this thing moves him as a possible Presidential candidate in 1952. . . . We are a baggy-kneed electorate as we march to the polls.

In fact I hear Ike may demand a recount of the best-dressed election. . . . He suspects the use of tailors' dummy ballots.

And I suspect he is as embarrassed as the upright lady who won the upside down cake contest.

She didn't mind winning, but it didn't strike her as a horizontal award and she feared the neighbors would think she was right for the wrong reason.

Anyway, in case of trouble in Europe we will know that we have not only the best generalship, but that the Eisenhower battle jacket is six style points up on the Timoshenko tunic.

Elderly Couple Perish in Blaze

Philadelphia—An elderly couple perished today in a fire which swept the bedroom of their North Philadelphia home. His wife, Amelia, 72, also died in the blaze.

PUC Orders Probe of Plan to Cut Oil Shipping Rates

Harrisburg—The Public Utility Commission today ordered an investigation of the Reading Railway Company's plan to pare fuel oil shipping rates below those charged by Eastern Pennsylvania truckers. The proposed tariff has been suspended until August 22 to allow the PUC to investigate complaints by truckers who claim they would be forced out of business. Truckers contend the proposed rate is non-compensatory. Reading has proposed trimming its rate 14 cents per 100 pounds which would reduce the charge to about five cents below that made by truckers. Approximately two million gallons of oil a week are involved in the shipments from Philadelphia, Chester and Marcus Hook to the Bethlehem Steel Company's plant at Bethlehem.

Kefauver Committee Says "Underworld Gov't" Exists

Washington—The Kefauver Crime Committee said today that there exists in America an "underworld government" which "enforces its own law and carries out its own executions." It said the Mafia—the dread "black hand society"—may be the force that holds together the far-flung crime empire. In its second interim report, the Senate crime investigating committee headed by Sen. Kefauver (D. Tenn.), said the nation's criminal gangs have amassed great wealth, infiltrated legitimate business and "sought to purchase respectability." The report said the "underworld government" nearly took over the State Government of Missouri in 1945. It cited political contributions to the campaign of Gov. Forrest Smith. Also cited in the report was Gov. Fuller Warren of Florida, where the Capone gang moved in and took over a local syndicate. The report said there was "no direct evidence" of protection payments to high officials.

GLARE IS DANGEROUS

Headlight glare remains one of the worst highway hazards, according to safety officials, who continue to warn drivers their own safety, as well as the safety of others, demands use of the lower beam when approaching opposing traffic on neighborhood streets or the open road.

Complaints of motorists in recent months indicate there is a growing carelessness on the part of vehicle operators in the matter of headlight use.

Blinding glare from upper beam lights assaults drivers everywhere, making it impossible to see pedestrians in the streets or along highways and making it extremely difficult to keep to the road.

Refusal to change to the lower beam after an approaching driver has done so is an indication of unfriendliness to be at the wheel of a car. Every driver should understand the vital relationship between visibility and highway safety.

Most states require use of the lower beam when there is approaching traffic, but enforcement is difficult. The matter is in the hands of the individual driver, who can contribute to the safety of night driving by showing consideration for his fellows.

TITO MAKES AN OFFER

Yugoslavia's dictator, Tito, is a communist and heads a typical communist state—except that it doesn't take orders from Moscow. He seems determined to maintain that position. But he once said he was neutral as between the East and West. Later he said Yugoslavia would go to war if directly attacked but not in the "interests of other powers." Now he has gone further.

He has said in a public statement that Yugoslavia will not only defend herself against assault but will resist any aggression in Europe, provided that the aggression elsewhere threatens Yugoslav independence. Of course, Tito can interpret his reservation as he pleases. But his statement seems to mean that any attempt to upset the present balance in Europe, to the detriment of Yugoslavia, will bring him into the struggle.

How far can Tito be trusted to keep his word? That's a question hard to answer because his attitude has grown out of Russian enmity toward him and not out of enthusiasm for the West on his part.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1950 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 — The Constitution provides Congress with the authority to legislate for the military forces.

It also provides Congress with the authority to increase, reduce or abolish the Army, Navy and Air Force all together. At the same time the framers of the Constitution, as interpreted in historic Federal Court decisions, cloaked the President with authority to use the military forces "in a manner which he may deem most effectual."

As the great Congressional debate on sending troops to Europe heads for the home stretch, the Constitutional provisions noted above are of increasing importance. Congress, of course, will not abolish the fighting forces of the nation just to stop President Truman from sending American fighting units to Europe. On the contrary, Congress will supply funds for training and equipping the necessary divisions for just such an assignment.

Politically, however, the Constitutional provisions, especially the determination that it is up to the President to employ the fighting services in their most "effectual" manner, will be an issue of endless debate.

Professor F. R. Black, of the University of Iowa Law School, a noted Constitutional authority, sided with the legal reasoning on military action as it pertains to Congress and the President. He says:

"Congress itself cannot direct the conduct of campaigns. It cannot delegate that power to any person or persons. It can legislate relative to the size of the Army and Navy, the compensation of officers and men, the term of service as well as many matters, but the command of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and with that the plan of campaign, is vested in the President."

This applies to the use of American troops in Korea as well as those to be assigned to Europe, or to any other area where powder kegs are about to be ignited.

Congress did not send American forces to Korea. The President did. Congress will not send additional American forces to Europe. The President will.

By 1952 the Korean campaign and any other disasters that may have occurred to American troops, will be major political issues in the Presidential campaign.

Congressional debate today is providing a backdrop for the political squabbling ahead. The pressure today in the Senate—stemming largely from objections by Senators Taft and Wherry on the issue of sending more troops to Europe—will aid in defining the right of the President, rather than Congress, to move American fighting men overseas. This is true even if the Senate votes its approval of the President's plans for four more divisions to Europe. It will be his decision to send them—or not to send them—despite any action, other than withholding funds, that the Congress might take.

The Constitutional provisions pertaining to the use of U. S. armed forces existed long before the current Congressional debate began. This fact did not alleviate the need for the debate by any means. It made it more necessary, largely because the nation is in a more critical situation today than at any time in our history.

The President made up his mind to send more troops to Europe before Congress uttered a word. He presumably is still determined to do so. If his strategy backfires he has no one but himself and his advisors to blame. The great debate in Congress has made this fact unarguable.

If Europe explodes, and American fighting men with their allies successfully halt the Soviet attack, Mr. Truman's position will be vindicated. If American and Allied forces arrive too late with too little and are routed, Mr. Truman's position as President will be untenable.

A successful conclusion in Korea will benefit the President's position although he will be called to account for the mounting list of American casualties. If Korea becomes an area of disaster, or even costly stalemate, the military wisdom of Mr. Truman and his aids will be doubted to a politically suicidal degree.

Thus the great debate in Congress draws the line between Mr. Truman's determination to gamble on his military wisdom as against those who say he is wrong. The President is committed. If he is right the nation will be committed to maintaining large military forces on many potential fighting fronts around the globe. If he is wrong he is through politically. And he knows it.

varies between districts, and ranges from $269 to $3100 per year. The highest salaries paid are in the central part of Bucks County. It was announced.

The problem of granting the cost of living increase was discussed at great length by board members. Some representatives of the different boards in the district felt that their budgets could not stand a cost of living increase at this time. No action was taken.

President Comly announced that a meeting of the building committee will be held this evening, and a meeting of the planning committee on Thursday evening.

Mr. Comly welcomed members of the P. T. A.'s to the meeting and said that "The board is always glad to see members of the different school organizations attend the meetings. When they report back to their organizations they should leave all personalities out of the reports, as he would not like to see any teacher or other person get into difficulties, or the teacher be dropped from the faculty, because of an improper report being made to any of the school organizations," he said.

Lester Ransom, chairman of the maintenance committee, reported that the Halmerville school has been re-wired and a new bell installed; the basement floor cemented at Parkland school, the cesspools at Pound and Langhorne high school buildings need repairs at once, it was stated. Discussion of the problem of the cesspools followed and Dr. Heckman reported that in very bad weather the cesspools give the most trouble. The cesspools at the high school have been pumped out twice in the past three weeks. The board decided to include the work in next year's budget and authorized the maintenance committee to take temporary measures.

In discussing the property recently purchased for a school site it was decided to have it posted as private property, also to contact the zoning board to see if it is possible to change it to a first class residential area. It was reported that several offers had been made by farmers to rent the ground for the coming season. This was turned over to a committee for investigation.

The bids received for the sports equipment were ordered turned over to the Athletic Council for auditing, said council to report back on its findings at the next meeting. Dr. Heckman stated that the influenza epidemic had affected so large a percentage of pupils and teachers in the system, that the school had to be closed for three days. "In some schools as many as 25 per cent of the pupils were absent, and in one school nearly 50 per cent of the pupils were absent."

Write Cheerful Letters to Son or Daughter in Service

By CARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

EVERY father and mother with a son or daughter in the armed forces feels some anxiety over this child; over the physical and moral hazards he might have to face. Denied the constant companionship and home endearments once enjoyed with this child at home, the anxieties by the parents tend to increase, causing them at times to write gloomily, to express pity for the youth and pity for themselves; also to indulge excessively in warnings against moral hazards and in exhortations on what this youth should or should not do.

Parents who are religious are tempted to warn this youth excessively not to neglect religious service, praying and reading his Bible. Certainly it would be very desirable for this youth to practice in these spiritual ways. But if he must read such warnings and exhortations in every letter, he may be harmed more than helped thereby, especially if they are like similar warnings and exhortations he often heard in vain while he was home.

Possible Help

But if, on the other hand, he practiced in these ways while he was home, thanks to his admiration of his godly parents and happy companionship with them, an occasional recall by the parent of these practices at home, with the suggestion of their possible help and comfort to him now could have the desired effect. For a parent, especially the father, to state in passing that he himself had been to church that day and felt uplifted by the services, could be far more persuasive than pages of exhortations to the son to attend religious worship.

Parents who feel sure they should exhort the youth in the armed forces to seek spiritual help and to avoid certain moral perils, would do well to write such exhortations and warnings only occasionally and then write them in such a way as not to seem too bossy. Certainly many letters from home ought to remind this youth of good traits and achievements of his in earlier days and belief that these strengths will go on in him. Nor does the youth want to hear of the aches and pains and misfortunes of his loved ones still alive, nor of the petty annoyances in the family. Why should he ever be burdened with anything he can't do a thing about?

He wants the news about the everyday doings in the family and neighborhood, especially about the many homey things: the baby brother's first tooth, some of his early utterances, or his first week at school or later success on the sand-lot baseball team; the puppy's growth and tricks, or the litter of new kittens. He likes to read many of the very kinds of things which almost make him feel he is lolling happily again among the homefolks. In his letters also should be enclosed from time to time some funny jokes and some really funny comics and cartoons. Let us pray that more comic strips will be funny. G. I. Joe needs to feel as he reads his letters from home that he is still a worthy member of the family only separated temporarily and that the hearts of all his loved ones are really with him.

Goal On Treatment, Sex Offenders, Clear

district attorneys, lawyers, psychologists, sociologists, educators, probation and parole officers and concerned citizens.

Proposals and programs presented in past years to the State Legislature have been discussed and analyzed. Laws on sex offenders enacted recently in New York, New Jersey and other states have been examined. Case material has been presented and evaluated.

This group has arrived at a number of agreements on the nature of a sound program for Pennsylvania, to include research, prevention, control and treatment.

The essentials of these proposals are outlined here:

Prevention—
1. Provide and expand community clinics for guidance and treatment of families and children.

2. Develop a public education mental health program to include sex education and problems of psychiatric deviation.

3. Establish psychiatric clinics available to every Quarter Sessions Court so that the offender may be examined before final sentence.

4. Provide appropriate facilities for diagnosis and treatment of those persons who feel themselves in need of such service because of their inability to control their behavior.

Control:
1. Open the classification and diagnostic center, established by the Legislature in 1945, properly staffed for the examination and study of persons committed by the courts.

2. Empower the Department of Welfare to make assignment of persons to appropriate institutions based on the diagnosis, study and recommendations of the classification center staff.

3. Create a training center to prepare personnel to staff the institutions and services in this field.

4. Make possible a general or indeterminate sentence for aggressive sex crimes.

Treatment:
1. Establish a separate institution under medical direction for the segregation, study and treatment of psychopathic offenders.

2. Provide all penal and corrective institutions with psychiatric, psychological and social service staffs to be able to diagnose and treat individual cases as required.

3. Place all releases from state institutions for certain crimes identified with the psychopathic offender under the parole board.

4. Create special services for probation and parole officers competent to deal with the psychopathic offender who does not require institutional care, but can take treatment as "out-patients" under supervision.

Research:
1. Enlist the cooperation of the various disciplines of graduate schools of the major universities for a continuous and systematic study of all elements of the problem.

2. Establish a continuous research program as an integral part of the work of the classification and diagnostic center.

It is clear that the full-blown program as outlined above may take considerable time for development. However, an immediate attack seems possible on at least three major points:

1. Opening of the classification center.
2. Creation of special institutions for offenders of this type.
3. Provision of clinical services for the courts and institutions.

These have first priority and should be established at the earliest possible time.

Our goal is clear.
The best that the medical, legal, and social sciences have to offer is required if we are to protect the individual and society in dealing effectively with the psychopathic offender.

Tells Women of Hospital Need

Hospital Consultant, will be the speaker.

Present hospital plans, the group was informed, call for 50 beds in a three-story building, estimated only for present needs. Future expansion is expected later, as the requirements of the communities increase.

The question of whether this area could "afford" such a hospital was dramatically answered by citing figures to illustrate the actual purchasing power of the residents of Bristol Borough and Bristol Township, showing that this is far from being a "poor" community. Graphical illustrations also showed the proportion of expected expense to be contributed, respectively, by industry, federal aid and public contributions.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary voted to approve a resolution urging the hospital the active support of their organization.

After the talk, other business of the meeting was concluded, specifically the nomination of officers for the coming year. The candidates will be voted on at the March meeting.

Search Highways, By-Ways
For Sufficient Jurors

James J. McGonigle, 29, of Bristol, fainting on the stand and was excused by the court. Before he became ill he stated that he had never been in a court before and he was very nervous.

Two alleged companions of Pearson also are charged with murder but will be tried separately at a later term of court. They are Walter J. Lowrey, 35, of Croydon; and Harry W. Chapasco, 37, of Salmon st. near Sergeant, Phila.

Pearson conferred with his attorneys, Edward Conro and Wilbur

H. VanDine as the various jurors were called on the opening day, and on several occasions seemed to nod approval of the challenges made by his lawyers.

The accused Pearson, black-haired of slight build, with sharp features, and has shown no outward sign of nervousness.

Judge Biester has been allowing wide leeway in the examination of the jurors, all of whom are questioned as to their belief or disbelief in capital punishment (the death penalty).

Two others charged with the same crime, to be tried at a later term are Harry W. Chapasco, 37 of Salmon st. near Albert, Phila. and Walter Lowrey, 35, of Croydon.

Among the witnesses to be called by the Commonwealth will be the murdered man's brother-in-law, Allen A. Ostroff, 38, of Phila., who was also attacked by the hold-up men, beaten and robbed of $60; Harry Gouldy, 33, of Phila., who was robbed of $40; and Peter Harkins, 27, Phila.

The shooting and holdup took place outside the Croydon supermarket.

Among others challenged yesterday were the following:

Charles Thatcher, Trumbauersville, writer, and son of the late Mark Thatcher, one time Clerk of Orphans' Court of Bucks County; Mrs. Elsie B. Clymer, Doylestown; Mrs. Elizabeth Slater, Bristol; Hugh Hoffman, 83, Warrington; Gilbert H. Gendall, Chalfont; Fred Carroll, Bristol; Daniel S. George, Perkasie; Horace G. Cordwell, Fallsington.

John Dolan, Lacey Park; Charles E. Finey, Bristol; Clifford K. Bealer, Pennsylvania RD; Dr. Floyd C. Frederici, Sellersville; Mrs. Ruth H. Dickson, Langhorne RD 2; Robert Bartelman, Frenchtown, N. J.; Mrs. Eliza L. Mahoney, Perkasie RD 3.

Councilmen Hear Of Others' Problems

27th and that the next meeting of the association has been invited to the Penn Manor Club, Falls Township, with Morrisville being the host borough. This meeting will be held April 24th.

During the open forum the meeting discussed problems confronting the various boroughs, including collection of personal taxes, financing of new street construction in developments, pigeon and dog control.

Judge Keller was invited to speak upon civilian defense and told of his being selected as coordinator and of the appointment of Col. Heritage as deputy coordinator with offices in the Court House at Doylestown. He said "civilian defense is a tremendous problem."

He praised Col. Heritage for his comprehensive plans and he mentioned the cost involved and of the efforts being made to have this cost shared by federal and perhaps state aid.

Judge Keller spoke of the dangerous area in which Bucks County is located, in case of a bombing attack, and of the plans being made in Philadelphia to care for refugees.

Boroughs and other municipalities having defense problems to solve were invited to take them to Col. Heritage.

U. N. Forces Continue Punching Red Lines of Hwangto in the channel of the harbor under cover of the guns of a U. S. Navy task force.

Last Saturday two other nearby islands were taken by the ROKS and the fall of Hwangto tightened the blockade of Wonsan, red supply and communications center 80 miles north of parallel 38.

The allies on their 250,000-man line across the peninsula kept up probing attacks Wednesday. In the central sector the Chinese sent a company attack against South Korean lines five-miles west of Hoengsong early Wednesday but were beaten back with the aid of American artillery.

The Third Division patrol which hit Seoul Tuesday night reported killing six Chinese and brought back one Chinese prisoner.

The Seventh Division, spearheading the northward drive in the center of the peninsula, captured high ground north of the Pangnim-Hoengsong lateral Tuesday despite rain and stiff enemy small-arms resistance.

A Seventh Division spokesman said there was no breakthrough of red defense lines in the area. The enemy defenses in mid-Korea are believed to be backed up by more than 100,000 Chinese and North Koreans preparing for an attack with artillery support.

International News Service War Correspondent Robert Schakne reported mounting evidence that the Chinese and North Koreans consider Hongchon the key to their defense in central Korea.

Hongchon is 22 miles below the 38th parallel and 47 miles east of Seoul. It lies 14 miles to the North of Hoengsong where the U. S. First Marine Division has been thrown into the vital central front action.

Reconnaissance pilots, flying in soupy weather, reported a red battalion dug in along the high ground to the southwest of Hongchon.

In the central front fighting, an intelligence officer of the U. S. Seventh Division estimated that 1,730 communists have been slain by the division in the past week. He said the remnants of the North Korean Third and Fifth Corps were "broken" and fleeing.

The Third-Term Issue

President Roosevelt, who ran for and was elected to not only a third term, but a fourth.

This is true only in the loosest sense. There is no doubt that the Roosevelt regime raised disturbing questions about tenure of office in the White House. Nevertheless, the question of basic law and public intention may be held to have been answered, as applies to President Roosevelt, when the American electorate voted for his reelection in 1940, despite the third-term issue — and thereafter, in 1944, approved a fourth term for him.

The fact of the matter is that the new amendment is aimed far more directly at President Truman than at the late President Roosevelt. It was introduced in 1947 when the Republican majority took over both Houses of Congress (jointly sponsored by Speaker Martin and Senator Vandenberg) and at a time when Congress was at grips, not with Roosevelt, but with Truman.

The amendment issue lay dormant until after the big 1948 breakup in the Democratic Party, and really came to life only when the Dixiecrat Democrats took control of the present session of Congress. The votes which made it law were a recent rush of Southern and Rocky Mountain States.

Despite the fact that the amendment says that it "shall not apply to any person holding the office of President when this Article was proposed by the Congress," and therefore is not binding upon President Truman, there is no doubt that the Democratic Party in its convention, and the Republicans and insurgent Democrats thereafter in the campaign (if President Truman should be renominated) will argue that the amendment shows public sentiment to be against a third term for him.

The long range scope of this new amendment, however, will have to be measured by factors not at present in the picture. Whether or not the time will come when some especially popular President will attempt to defy the amendment, on the excuse of an "emergency," and if so what the status would be if the public elected him despite the amendment — those are matters which may arise some time in the future.

Meanwhile, the way to perceive the profound effect of the amendment, so long as it does remain effective, is to glance back and note how drastically such an amendment would have altered the course of past events, if it had been ratified a century earlier.

For example, it would have headed off one of the great destructive battles in the Republican Party, that which deadlocked the 1880 convention and threw the nomination to the most completely dark dark-horse the Republicans ever elected — James A. Garfield. (His name hadn't even been put in nomination when the landslide started, and he was prevented from withdrawing his candidacy during the balloting only by a point of order.)

The factor which deadlocked that convention was the drive which General Grant was making for a third term as President. The new amendment would have made this quite impossible. The Republican Party would thereby have been saved scars and stresses which have haunted it ever since.

Again, in 1912, the political factor which elected Woodrow Wilson, threw the nation into the hands of the Democrats during the period of the First World War, and which modified the course of events in immeasurable fashion, was the Bull Moose movement of President Theodore Roosevelt who bolted the Republican Convention and set out to try to win for himself what under the new amendment would be prohibited as a third term. (Roosevelt served three years of McKinley's second term.)

It is equally impossible to estimate the difference which would have resulted in world events if, back in 1940, it had been impossible for President Roosevelt to run for a third term, and if therefore he had been forced to make provisions to step aside and leave the outcome of that critical campaign to a substitute instead of carrying the ball himself.

If future history is changed only a fraction as much as past history would have been by the earlier adoption of the third-term amendment, its effect will still be nothing less than revolutionary.

EMILIE

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ahlum and son Glenn were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lukens, Pennel.

Eighty-five members and friends of the Emilie Horse Company were served a turkey and oyster supper Saturday evening at six in the Methodist Church social room. The W. S. C. S. was in charge of the supper with the Young People's choir members serving.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morrell, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bruce and children, also John Bruce, journeyed to Manoa on Sunday afternoon where John Bruce will remain for a week as the guest of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bruce. The Morrells and Bruces also visited Mr. and Mrs. on many subjects, but her first and foremost interest was in temperance. She was the first president of the World's Christian Temperance Union. It was on one of her many speaking tours that she visited Bristol and was the guest of Miss Martha Hughes. In memory of Miss Willard the Bristol Union again subscribed to the Frances Willard memorial fund, a fund used to further work of temperance in the United States and throughout the world.

Other donations were voted by the local union—to the Red Cross, and to the "Miles of Dimes" project for sending fruit juices to enlisted men in Korea, this latter project being sponsored by the WCTU.

Four goals were proposed by the state president, Mrs. Emma O. Leonard, the "Miles of Dimes", thousands of letters to Congress protesting use of alcoholic beverages in the armed services; an increase to 40,000 members by July first; and a New Crusade fund for the spread of temperance education throughout the state of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Calvin Rush, president, presided.

CHALFONT, Feb. 28 — A total of 150 attended the "open house" celebration on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Kratz, marking their golden wedding anniversary.

The Kratzes were entertained at dinner by their children and grandchildren at a restaurant prior to the other celebration.

Mr. Kratz, now 76 years old, and the former Miss Mabel Weisel, now 70, were married on February 29, 1901, at the home of the latter's parents, Frank and Kate (nee Stout) Weisel, near Tradersville. Mr. Kratz is a native of Trewington, a son of the late Ephraim and Catherine (nee Clymer) Kratz.

Attendants at the wedding were Miss Amanda Weisel, a sister of the bride of 50 years ago, and Harry Kenderline, who were married the following year.

Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Kratz leased the Weisel property, where they farmed for six years. Later they purchased the property on which they now reside. They have retired from farming.

They are members of Chalfont Grange, of which Mr. Kratz served as master for two terms and as secretary for 18 years. With the exception of one, all of their children are college graduates.

Their oldest son, the Rev. Willard A. Kratz, is pastor of Salem E. and R. Church, Catasauqua, and another son, Norman W. Kratz, is supervising principal of the Council Rock schools, Newtown. A third son Herbert E. Kratz, holds an executive position in Norristown. The other children are Lawrence W. Kratz, who farms the homestead property; Mrs. Pearson Hogeland, Feasterville, who taught school in this county for five years; Mrs. Rodman Webster, Willow Grove, and Mrs. Walter Schremple, Bethlehem.

TRENTON CATHOLIC RALLIES TO WIN OVER WARRIORS

Trenton Catholic High rallied in the third quarter to overcome a Bristol lead and then outscored the Warriors in the final quarter to come through with a 66-54 win last night on the local court.

Bristol staged a fine spurt in the third session and exhibited one of its best passing performances of the season. It started the quarter with a 25-29 deficit and with Andy Accardi and "Charlie" Rauch leading the attack took a 37-34 lead towards the finish of the session but Stan Czenis and Jack Prior soon had Trenton Catholic in front by a 44-39 score. "Bill" Strobele scored four double-deckers in the last quarter and one in the first to give him 10 points for the night. Andy Accardi led the Warriors with 19 points.

For the winners, Frey had 17 points and Czenis, 15.

2 EXTRA PERIODS NEEDED FOR WIN BY BENSALEM

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Feb. 28—Two extra periods were required to settle the Bensalem high-Southampton high tilt, here, last night.

"Walt" Smith decided the fracas with less than 20 seconds remaining to be played by scoring the field goal which gave Bensalem a 50-49 triumph over the Greyhounds. However, the victory may prove costly to the Owls as "Al" Bader re-injured his ankle in the third quarter. Earlier in the season, Bader was injured in the George School game. It is not known whether the stellar Bensalem guard will be available for the PIAA game against East Greenville Friday night on the Lower Merion high school court.

The game was a hard-fought affair. Bensalem trailed by 9 points at the end of the first quarter but evened the count at half-time, 23-23. Coach Johnny Messinger's boys eked out a 35-31 lead at the close of the third session but Southampton deadlocked it at the end of the regulation game, 46-46. Both teams scored a field goal in the first overtime period. In the second extra period, "Sonny" Peak put Coach Claude Lodge's team in front with a foul conversion. With less than 29 seconds to go, Smith missed a fielder but covered up and took the rebound to zip the ball through the net for the winning double-decker. The Bensalem Junior Varsity bowed to the Southampton Jayvees, 18-33, in the preliminary game. The "Southies" led all the way and at half-time were in front, 26-15. Ronald Elliott scored 10 of the Bensalem points.

ROHM & HAAS TO PLAY PROFY TONIGHT

Due to an agreement among the managers, the Rohm & Haas team will play Profy's in the first game tonight on the chemical makers' court. In the second encounter, Luciano Brothers meet the Cornwells Boys' Club. Both are Bristol Basketball League games with the initial fracas scheduled for 7:30 o'clock. The schedule originally called for the teams to play in the reverse order.

The Profymen can assure themselves of a tie by winning over the Rohm & Haas boys. Manager Buck Profy lost "Ham" Konelaf and "Val" Bielecki last week, the boys enlisting in the U. S. Navy. He has replaced them with Grant Eckert and Gill Schwartz. Rohm & Haas still has a mathematical chance of finishing in the deadlock for fourth place if it can beat the radnomen. Luciano must beat Cornwells to remain in the race for first place. It is trailing the league-leading Profy team by one-half game. Luciano lost Frank Thropp via an eligibility rule last week. The Tullytown team is assured of a playoff spot.
